Briefing from your advisor

The State of the Union Address is the speech that is given every year by the President. This speech, or address, looks back on the past year, and into the new year. The major accomplishments, struggles and disasters of the last year are explained, and the hopes and plans for the next year are laid out, as well. While you are not the President yet, you are gaining national attention, and I think that giving your own "State of the Union Address" in Congress will help inspire your fellow Congressmen and women, and give you an even bigger boost to become that presidential candidate I know you can become.

See the next page for how to deliver your speech...

How to deliver your speech...

1. Pick 5 current issues going on in our state, country or the whole world. (Ex- Immigration reform, state budget, the past Presidential Election, Syrian Civil War, etc.)
2. Summarize what has happened for each issue in the last year or so
3. Explain what you hope will happen in the next year with each issue
4. Explain how you plan to help with each issue as one of the country's leaders
5. Organize everything into a speech format (including an introduction & conclusion)
6. Share your Doc with me, and wait to see how impressive your address was!
